CHRISTMAS LOTTERY NUMBERS

You can play the lottery with confidence and maybe even hit the jackpot with Countess Sophia Sahak's lucky number guide for Christmas!

It's her holiday gift to you — and finding your lucky numbers is easy.

All you have to do is look them up under your sun sign below.

After painstaking study of the powerful signs in the heavens, the Countess has determined that these numbers are all charged with star power that can work magic for you.

For a personal touch that you won't find in any other number guide, Countess Sahak suggests that you play the day of the month you were born along with the numbers she provides.

For example, if you were born May 15, play the number 15.

"Most people realize that their birth dates are special. I want to put that special number to work," the Countess says. "When a birth date is used with my numbers, the individual will have a combination that is theirs alone."

Should you need additional numbers, simply consult Countess Sahak's Lucky Lottery Numbers guide on page [page] 41.

Judge admits: I can't make it on my $89G salary

A federal judge resigned his job to enter private law practice — complaining that he can't live on $89,000 a year!

"Eighty-nine thousand dollars isn't enough to put four children through private colleges," Judge Emil Ramirez, 45, told reporters in Sacramento, Calif.

"As you well know, the cost of a private college starts at around $15,000. I've got four children in col-

LADY BOSS FIRES MAN WHO SPURNED HER!

LOVE-STARVED Selma Hague canned handsome male employee who refused to romance her.

By LAUREL DOWN

Handsome bachelor Hans Hubel used to snicker when gals griped about sexual harassment in the office.

But hapless Hans quit laughing the day he went to work for a tubby, bucktoothed old maid who constantly pinched him and pawed him — and finally fired him because he refused to make love to her!

BACHELOR Hans Hubel won $33,000 suit.

"Now I know how the ladies feel when some old bummer is always drooling over them at work, treating them like play-things," the former soccer star told reporters in Stuttgart, West Germany.

"It's an joke. That old battle-ax made my life a living hell.

"She couldn't keep her hands off me and she kept whispering lewd suggestions in my ear, trying to get me into bed with her. But she was so ugly, I just couldn't stomp that low, and to save my job — and probably not even to save my life."

Herried Hans, 33, was a happy-go-lucky salesman for a home cleaning company till love-starved Selma Hague, 53, took over the office where he worked.

"She was a wrinkled old hag who was totally unfit to run an office, but her brother owned the company so we were stuck with her," the jilted salesman recalled.

"The first thing she did was invite me up to her apartment, supposedly to discuss business. But I wasn't there 10 minutes before she strolled out of the bedroom in this ghastly sheer nightgown with her fat, hairy arms and legs sticking out all over the place.

"I got the hell out of there, but on my way out the door she informed me it was going to happen sooner or later if I hoped to keep my job."

After that, Hans' lovely boss never gave him a moment's peace. "There wasn't a day that she didn't rouse up and pinch my behind and run her hands under my shirt," the rugged-featured bachelor said. And when Hans continued to deflect her advances, shrewdy Selma turned downright nasty.

"She demoted me to inside salesman and took away my company car and credit cards," he recalled. "And before long the pig-faced witch had me waiting on her like a slave — bringing her tea, typing her letters, even rubbing her feet.

"Finally, I told her I'd never make love to her no matter what — and that's when she fired me."

Harassed Hans sued the sibling firm and won $33,000 in damages and back pay.

Kid kills brother #2, say cops

By JACK ALEXANDER

A trigger-happy teenage kid has shot and killed one of his brothers — for the second time in four years, cops said.

Baby-faced Britt Kellum is being held for murder in the Russian roulette shooting of his brother, Lewis, 6, in their Flint, Mich., home.

The shooting occurred almost four years to the day after Britt gunned down his 11-year-old brother, Anthony, with a shotgun during an argument.

"He wasn't prosecuted for Anthony's death and we know now that was a horrible mistake," said Police Lt. Joe DeCatch.

The latest tragedy happened while Britt and Lewis were in the bedroom of their father's house.

"Britt decided to play Russian roulette with his little brother's life," said Lt. DeCatch.

"Britt said he was bored and felt like doing something crazy and exciting, so he grabbed his dad's .38-caliber revolver and forced his little brother to play the deadly game with him," said Lt. DeCatch.

"Lewis was a reluctant participant, the victim was a reluctant participant."

Four years ago Britt blew his 11-year-old brother away with his dad's shotgun. Authorities declined to prosecute and Britt was ordered to undergo psychological therapy.

Six months ago, a psychologist said Britt was no longer a menace. He was allowed to go home and live with the rest of the family full-time.

"I guess, in hindsight, the shrinks should have kept him in those therapy sessions awhile longer," said one cop, who declined to be quoted by name.

Britt was arraigned in Flint Juvenile Court on a charge of murder as an adult. At worst, he could be confined in a juvenile detention center until he's 21.

Britt appeared in court dressed in a T-shirt and jeans and was described by one observer as "cool as a cucumber." "He's so calm and remorseless, it's scary," said another officer.

A judge refused to release Britt on bail, fearing for the safety of his only brother who is still alive, Duncan, 8.

Relatives declined to talk about the case. "We've got one little boy dead and another one behind bars," one relative told The NEWS. "This is a pretty sad house, right now."

Under Michigan law, the teenage suspect can't be tried for murder as an adult. At worst, he could be confined in a juvenile detention center until he's Outraged neighbors up in arms!

HOMEOWNER PANHANDLES IN HIS OWN FRONT YARD!

By JACK ALEXANDER

Retiree Chester Clausson says his $150-a-week income isn't enough for him to live on so he stands in his yard almost every day and begs for more.

Clausson's disgusted neighbors think he's a disgrace, "and disappoints the whole neighborhood."

But Clausson, 78, says he and his wife need the money.

For several weeks — rain or shine — he has been begging for money from motorists and others who pass by his small home in a middle-class neighborhood in Indianapolis, Ind., where he has lived more than 30 years.

He catches the eye of passersby with signs like, "Please we need money. Thank you" or "Please We Need Med. Help. Hosp. & Doc. God Bless & Thank you."

"I really don't care what the neighbors say," said the old pensioner. "They aren't paying my bills. It's legal what I'm doing."

Neighbors say they've tried to help him.

"We've offered food, but he doesn't want food," said one disgusted neighbor. "He wants money. He sells the canned goods that people give him."

Another neighbor said Clausson sometimes begs from a wheelchair or leaning on a cane — reportedly on paydays and after church.

Clausson said he retired after 30 years as a state employee. He gets $788 from Social Security and $331.80 from a pension for a total monthly income of $987.80. But his expenses total $917.

"I try real hard. I pay my bills regularly, but there's not much left to live on," said Clausson, whose wife Sandra, 68, suffers from epilepsy and can't work.

"There's no way we can get by for a month on what's left over, especially with the medical bills we're expecting," he said. So the tall, lanky retiree has taken up begging. On a good day, he'll make $75. On a bad day, maybe $5.

Clausson says he makes too much money to qualify for welfare or any of the other "free stuff."

Mary Hull, a counselor at a multiservices center says she is going to find out if anything can be done for him.

PENSIONER Chester Clausson says he needs money and he's found a way to get it — he begs for it. On a good day, Chester says he collects $75.

How to rub your fat away

By BEATRICE DEXTER

Tubby tummies will soon be a thing of the past, thanks to a new weight-loss method that lets you lose inches off your middle — simply by massaging off the flab!

The simple tummy rub routine will help you drop five pounds a week, according to San Francisco acupuncturist Dr. Chett Chang.

"Just rubbing your stomach gives you zip," said Dr. Chang, who wrote a book called Internal Exercises. "If you do it properly, you can break down fatty lumps, strengthen the heart and balance the energy levels in your blood."

Dr. Chang says he bases his tummy technique on an ancient reducing method devised 4,000 years ago in China. The method is still being used in China today, the expert says.

"You should place the palm of your hand over your belly button and begin to rub slowly and lightly in ever-widening circles to cover the entire abdomen, gradually reduce their size again, until you are back to your navel."

A mere two minutes a day of gently rubbing the tummy will have jelly bellies looking sleek and slim in no time, Dr. Chang says. The method helps break down fats and eliminate fat from the body — and it does so by harnessing imagined energy waves.

Dr. Chang advises visualizing energy flowing from your hand into your body.

FIRST PHOTO EVER OF A UFO BABY!

WORLD EXCLUSIVE!

By RAGAN GUNN

The first photo of a UFO baby that was delivered by Soviet doctors last August has been smuggled to the West. The shocking black-and-white photo clearly shows the boy to be horribly misshapen — with brain tissue outside his head!

The stunning photograph was obtained by Yugoslavian sources and accompanied by classified documents that describe the infant's progress since his August 25 birth.

The papers, signed by Soviet obstetrician Sapar Kuryiev, say the baby appears to be both healthy and happy. He is also extremely alert — and nurses on electricity that he draws out of wall sockets with a strange pronged tongue.

"The infant is remarkable," Dr. Kuryiev reported in a memo that was attached to the smuggled photo.

"There is no telling how much we can learn from him as he continues to grow and develop. He can certainly help us to understand the evolution and abilities of extraterrestrial life."

The actual birth of the alien baby was reported in The NEWS last September 5. At that time we quoted from classified documents that said the baby's mother and eight other Soviet doctors by surprise.

BIRTH of the UFO baby was reported in The NEWS on September 5.

There were also indications that the blue-skinned baby had died shortly after birth.

But the photograph and more recent reports suggest that that was not the case.

According to Dr. Kuryiev's report, the mother actually appeared to be shocked when she saw the infant's face.

"The mother refused to nurse the baby but that was of no consequence," wrote Dr. Kuryiev. "He could crawl at birth and to our surprise at most immediately began to nurse from an electrical socket without injury or ill effect.

"The baby's flesh is as hard as stone and there is definitely brain tissue on his face and head," continued the doctor. "The only trait he shares with the adult aliens are gleaming black eyes.

"It's possible that his skull will grow as he ages and cover the brain. If not, the infant will be vulnerable to brain injury as long as he lives."

Large portions of Dr. Kuryiev's report have been blacked out so it is impossible to determine where the Soviets are keeping the baby.

No mention of it is made of the mother or other adult aliens, making it impossible to tell if they're dead or alive.

Soviet officials refused to comment on the documents, photo or report. Repeated attempts to reach Dr. Kuryiev also failed — in spite of heavy pressure from UFO researchers in Britain, Europe, China and the United States.

Meanwhile, Swedish UFO researcher Christina Dahlqvist has asked Soviet boss Mikhail Gorbachev to release information about the alien baby "before the end of the year."

SMUGGLED photo of the hideous alien baby shows brain matter growing outside the creature's head.

Sicko rapes paralyzed gal

A 31-year-old man asked a paralyzed woman out on a date — and then raped the helpless quadriplegic after she kissed him good night!

Now a jury has found him guilty of rape and aggravated sodomy, and the heartless sicko is facing life in prison for his crimes.

"They kissed, things got out of hand, and she couldn't defend herself," Assistant District Attorney Tom Hatch of Kansas City, Kans., told The NEWS. "It was a date rape.

"The assailant, Fathi El Ayadi, tried to say it was an act of love and she agreed to it — but he wasn't believable."

The 35-year-old victim, who was not identified, testified that she had met Ayadi at a restaurant while she was dining with her grandmother. The wheelchair-bound woman has been paralyzed since an automobile accident at the age of 14 damaged her spinal cord.

The woman told the court that Ayadi seemed like a "real nice guy" when he introduced himself. She agreed to go out with him a few days later, in most another people for drinks.

"Afterwards he drove her back to where her specially equipped van was parked," Hatch said.

"She kissed him good night. He took her out of her wheelchair and put her in the back of her van. Then he raped her and sodomized her."

"I said 'no,'" the woman testified. "The next thing I knew, I was thrown on the floor of the van."

Hatch said that after the attack, the woman begged to be put back in her wheelchair so she could drive herself home.

The next morning she told her nurse's aide about the attack. She later went to police.

Both said the victim is in therapy and is doing well.

Mutt was so-o-o cranky, he was kicked out of obedience school!

Bulldog bully bitten by love

. . . now he's tame as a kitten!

By BILL MOSS

Spike was such a big, bad bully of a bulldog that he was banned from obedience school, but the four-legged troublemaker has finally been tamed — by love!

Nearly eight months ago, Bill Wright, an insurance agent living in Huddersfield, England, plunked down $1,800 for the plucky 18-month-old pooch.

"But when I entered Spike in a dog show," Wright said, "he snarled at other dogs in the show ring and tried to bite them.

"I enrolled him in obedience school but he pinned one of the trainers against a wall for 15 minutes and was expelled.

"Then I put him in another class run by two ladies, but they told me not to bring him back again after he terrified one of them by grabbing her blouse and refusing to let go.

"I couldn't think of what to do, but then a friend suggested that getting a female bulldog might be the answer."

So Wright shelled out another $1,800 for Elsie, a 3-year-old champion bulldog — and it was instant love at first sight.

"Spike suddenly became a gentle, well-behaved dog," said Wright.

"He never lets her out of his sight, and she was there when he won first prize at a local dog show.

"She shares his sleeping quarters, and we're hoping that sometime soon they'll mate and have a family."

BRUISING: Spike was a big troublemaker until he met pug-faced cutie Elsie, right, and settled down.

MAJOR EVENTS OF THE FUTURE REVEALED!

AN EXCLUSIVE HISTORICAL FIRST! HIS UNPUBLISHED PROPHECIES

DARE YOU READ THEM?

WAS HE A WIZARD? A SERVANT OF GOD? A SUPER PSYCHIC? A DEVIL WORSHIPPER? OR A BEING FROM ANOTHER PLANET

HIS PREDICTIONS WERE 100% ACCURATE

Nostradamus is credited with being the greatest prophet of modern recordings, today. His uncanny, unerring forecasts are considered to be highly accurate. Nostradamus in the 16th century, predicted both World Wars, space orbits, astronaut orbits, Hitler's appearance, and events, as well as the assassination of both Kennedys.

The man warned the world of the coming of the atomic bomb. He wrote of space flights. And about the sea god hill of Russia, to one of his most amazing predictions no forecaster has ever equaled he listed over by a religious leader among the following in mystical quotations: "Annihilation. Nature, war will rise! Persia [now Iran], Assyrians reconvene and among the nuances [as Islam]. Or which the end will begin or does [Persia]." Everybody knows that the Ayatollah Khomeini started his revolution while exiled in France.

For the future, Nostradamus predicts that there will be war in the Middle East in the next few years, during which the Big powers will intervene. He even talks of the crossing of the anti-Christ and non-the U.S. and Russia will crumble! Europe. It only has a brief period. He also speaks of a "religious war" and the Vatican's fleeing to escape the hands of St. Peter to a safe place.

But, perhaps most outstanding of all, is the fact that Nostradamus and his own death in ties to help with the funeral arrangements!

THE MOST MYSTERIOUS MAN WHO EVER LIVED

Legend has it that unusual activity was extremely powerful for several nights before the birth of Nostradamus. Reports of angels, comet objects in the sky over St. Remy de Nostradamus, France on December 14th 1503 was rather unfortunate because Master Nostradamus (his family's real name), presented his mother with a perfect baby in the 16th Century, plotted babies were prized—valued of. The mortality rate was very high.

He had an incredible mother. He was very young when he mastered ancient languages and astronomy math. By became a licensed physician at 23. His mother's amazing powers to cure deaths without exhibiting the dread disease. With a strange mixture of herbs and ingredients unknown to the world, he was able to cure many of the afflicted, thus becoming known throughout Europe as a miracle healer.

In his day, Nostradamus was closely with kings and queens who were impressed by his ability to see into the future. Royalty came by and ride to be in his presence, as princes went they to know what the stars had in place for them. Many were disappointed as Nostradamus told well in advance about beheadings, revolutions, and the assassination that diminished among monthly's most prominent figures.

THE SECOND COMING & THE ANTICHRIST

Though Nostradamus considered himself an expert astrologer, he studied the stars of a totally unique way. He used a specific mental state writing. The doctor was basically a magic word which he used in conjunction with a figure of some sort made of wood. Nostradamus also consumed himself a very obligated person, and while he was born a Jew, he later converted to the Catholic faith, utilizing mystical philosophy from both practices in his work. Many of his predictions dealt with the Second Coming of Christ and the Anti-Christ.

There are some who maintain that Nostradamus was a direct messenger of God, and that his predictions were divinely inspired. To give credence to this claim, the French seer who later reimbursed to a young Protestant boy—a poor village lad, and upon meeting the youth dropped to his knees, fainted only to had done so. Nostradamus exclaimed: "Blessed, I shall bow and never before my Redeemer." There later, this youth became the Pope, under the title of Pontus the Fifth.

Others believe that Nostradamus was a time traveler from the future or perhaps a being from another planet, all have theories on exposed to debut.

NOSTRADAMUS' UNPUBLISHED QUATRAINS

A certain manuscript has been where the verses of Europe where known as Nostradamus' most famous last letters to various people. Up till now none of the material has been released to the U.S.

Shortly before his death, Nostradamus assembled a series of predictions to shocking events never had been revealed to any of his previous works. Supposedly because he was afraid of the effect they might have. These predictions were accepted only to royalty and were thought destroyed for many years until they were discovered, hidden in the basement of the Tower where Nostradamus died.

The title page of the newly discovered document reads: "Century III, Number III." The work's last supposedly unseen, published, was "Century III, Number IV." The remainder is four Nostradamus made more than twelve centuries, but was

Some of the predictions are a year or two or more proper to his original prophecies that have only been translated and interpreted.

There are just a few of the provocative subjects dealt with in this rare volume!

- The reappearance of Jesus to the world.
- Extraterrestrial contact in the sky that will be a friendly invasion of alien beings from other worlds in space, whose knowledge which will lead to the elimination of disease and starvation.
- How Americans far superior to existing humanity in use on this planet.
- A nuclear war in space.
- The date when eight dangerous sky objects will be in the proximity of earth.
- The destruction of the Vatican church and the next Pope.
- The great earthquake which will kill many millions in the country of many great cities.
- World ruled from Paris France.

Indeed, his prophet has not been also been more about the future than any of his predecessors. With the world's current state of affairs, mankind, environment tensions, and the realization that there are the "Last Days" the time spoke, at you cannot afford to miss reading NOSTRADAMUS' UNTOLD STORY, HIS UNPUBLISHED PREDICTIONS! Elephant woman blamed for granddaughter's deformity

IT'S NOT MY FAULT!

By SUSAN JAMISON

Ailing grandmom Edwina Reeves has disfiguring Elephant Man's disease, but the real tragedy in her life is that she cannot see her two granddaughters — because her son has banned her from his home!

The heartbroken housewife has been forbidden to see Jessica, 5, and Charlotte, 10, for the past five years. Her only son Alan blames her because Jessica inherited her terrible disease.

"I have enough to cope with in life without my own son turning against me," said Edwina, 59, who has never met Jessica and hasn't seen Charlotte in five years.

"Five years ago I thought I was the only one in the world with this weird disease. Now my own granddaughter has it. Jessica has already lost an eye, and her face is drooping. He has given me no reason for blaming me."

Edwina didn't show severe signs of her rare disease — called neurofibromatosis — until she was 32 years old. It was then that her face began to swell and twist into a mass of bulging flesh. By that time she had already married and had her son, who inherited a milder form of the disease.

She had the benign growths surgically removed, but they grew back. Eventually she lost the sight of one eye, and the bulging growth of nerve tissue destroyed the muscles in her face, making further surgery impossible.

When Alan married and had little Charlotte — a healthy girl — Edwina begged him not to have a second child for fear it might carry the disease.

"But he dismissed that as nonsense and went ahead," Edwina said in Cambridgeshire, England. "When Jessica was born with the disease, I offered to go to the hospital. But Alan said no. Since then he has prevented me from seeing my grandchildren. If I call him, he just says 'yes' or 'no' and puts the phone down. When I send the children presents, his wife Mary tries to send them back. They are naturally very upset and used to blame someone. But he is the one to blame. He ignored my advice and gave this affliction to Jessica."

TRAGIC Jessica Reeves, 5, inherited neurofibromatosis from her granny.

HER son has banned ailing Edwina Reeves from his home because he blames her for passing on tragic disfiguring disease to little Jessica.

My own son has turned against me, says heartbroken granny

How the Magic of Miracle Power Crystals was discovered

The Miracle Power Crystal is an extremely rare type of rock crystal found only in scattered parts of the western United States. Geologists estimate that it is at least four million years old.

Several years ago, it became fashionable among the rich and famous to use these crystals in custom-made jewelry, along with diamonds, emeralds, rubies and other precious stones. As a result, the wealthy became owners of Miracle Power Crystals without even realizing it!

They soon noticed, however, that all kinds of wonderful things started happening to them! Some suspected that their new jewelry had something to do with their good fortune—but few guessed that the power really came from the Crystal, and the Crystal alone!

Finally, science perfected super-sensitive instruments that detect the dynamic energy waves given off by the Crystals. They oscillate, vibrate and send out electromagnetic waves that surround the human body and attract Good Luck... Money... New Friends... even Romance.

Hanky-panky hypnotist lured beauties into bed

UNPROFESSIONAL CONDUCT — Dr. Antonio Carmona is on hot seat.

By TINO DORADO in Lisbon

Fourteen women complained to authorities after they went to see a hypnotist for help in quitting smoking — and were mesmerized into having sex!

Dr. Antonio Carmona, 46, of Lisbon, Portugal, has been charged with sexual misconduct as a result of the shocking accusations given by the women.

"After the first visit to Dr. Carmona I was helpless to resist him," said one patient, businesswoman Tula Spanola, 27. "Whenever he asked me for sex, I agreed."

Police in Lisbon say they've received complaints here almost seven years when Dr. Carmona opened his practice as a hypnotherapist in 1979, specializing in helping patients break bad habits. He successfully cured a number of smokers, overeaters and drinkers, police say, but he also captured a number of his most attractive patients.

According to police, Dr. Carmona used the same technique with each of his victims. When a pretty woman turned up at his office, he would ask her to be shown to his couch and undergo hypnosis. The victim, by then in a trance, would be told by Dr. Carmona's aides they were asked by Dr. Carmona to sit on his lap. They say the hypnotist explained to them that they were physical contact was necessary to strengthen the effects of the therapy.

'I couldn't resist him,' says victim

"I knew it was wrong, but I did what he asked anyway," said Miss Spanola, a mother of two. "He was fat and had bushy hair. He was unappealing, but I believed his ardent."

"I sat on his lap and I remember blacking out. When I came to, my clothes were rumpled and my buttons were undone. I knew he'd had sex with me but I didn't have any memory of it."

Mrs. Spanola says she was hypnotized also returning for "treatments" every week for three years although she was ashamed of her sexual exploits with Dr. Carmona. She finally became so depressed over her behavior that she tried to kill herself, she said.

When her husband learned the true cause of her depression, he took her to the police, she told her story.

"We had had scores of complaints about Dr. Carmona," said police spokesman Francisco Antunes. "Thanks to Mrs. Spinola we've got him."

Dr. Carmona faces 27 years in prison if he is convicted on the current charge.

UNDER A SPELL. Tula Spinola spilled the beans.

NEW SHOCKER IN BLOCKBUSTER BOOK

Elvis stunk to high heaven & even wet his pants!

PRESLEY had an inkling she would die, family says.

Pill-popping rocker Elvis Presley was so hooked on drugs he refused to bathe for months on end, he often wet his pants — and he stunk to high heaven!

Before the pills finally killed him, a fat and frightened Elvis lost his ability to make love — and had so many brushes with death his pals made bets on when and where the rock 'n' roll legend would meet his Maker.

Investigative reporters Charlie Thompson and Jim Cole make these and other shocking revelations in a startling, soon-to-be published book called Elvis, Dead on Arrival.

Drugged-out King never took ■ bath and couldn't make love, say insiders

Thompson, a producer at All Florida Productions, spent more than 18 years researching and writing what could be the most interesting — and heartbreaking — Elvis book ever.

Among the authors' most telling disclosures:

● Elvis was addicted to a wide overdose of prescription drugs and nothing else — despite an official report claiming "heart problems" contributed to his death.

● Pals and local ambulance men say they had a plan to smuggle his body back to Memphis if he died somewhere else — figuring it would be easier to cover up the circumstances of his death in Tennessee, where Elvis was everybody's teddy bear.

Springsteen gives band the boot

● Despite a girlfriend's claim that "The King was reading The Sound of Thrush when he died in 1977, he was actually gearing at a "really raunchy piece of pornography."

● The spaced-out superstar went too macho without a bath and had trouble controlling his bodily functions.

● The jaded rocker was so concerned about his appearance that he took regular hormone injections in a desperate but futile bid to regain his virility. — New York Daily News

Pop goddess Debbie Harry recalls close encounter with Ted Bundy!

Pop goddess Deborah Harry still gets chills down her spine thinking about the day she hitched a ride in New York City — and came face to face with sadistic serial killer Ted Bundy!

At last, dazzling Debbie's mistaken the guy who lured her into his car was Bundy — the monster who abducted and murdered dozens of women before being tried in Florida's electric chair.

The former lead singer for the rock band Blondie says she was trying to catch a cab late one night in the early '70s when a fellow pulled up in a little white car and insisted on giving her a ride.

"I got in the car, and it was rainy-weather and the windows were all rolled up except about an inch and a half at the top," Debbie recalled with a shudder.

"Anyway, briefly, I sort of reached to roll down the window, and I realized there was no door handle, no window crank, no nothing.

"I got very nervous. I reached up there and through the little crack and knocked down and opened the car from the outside.

"By then he saw that, he tried to turn the corner really fast, and I spun out of the car and landed in the middle of the street."

Now Debbie, who's given us a string of hits like Heart of Glass, Call Me and Rapture, said she didn't realize until the week about Bundy's executing last year that she'd escaped the clutches of one of the world's most evil men.

"The whole description of how he operated and what he looked like and the kind of car he drove and the state trooper he was dating at it — that area of the country — it's exactly," she said.

"I'm one of the lucky ones. If there are any others, I don't know. I think it was the first and last time I ever hitchhiked." — Miami Herald

The fabulous secret of the famous and kind Calinche is now revealed!

Since I started wearing the Cross of Agades I have won the lottery twice.

The Legend begins in the kingdom of Ashin of the great Sultan Boughal. Ahmed, a poor camel driver, fell out of favor with the powerful Sultan and was expelled in an oasis to die in the desert. Alone and in agony, Ahmed was viciously attacked by a Bedouin. Upon seeing the dagger poised to plunge into his chest, Ahmed grabbed his assailant's neck, tearing off the chain he was wearing. A strange cross made up of silver hung from the chain. The Bedouin immediately turned pale, staggered, and fell dead as if struck by lightening.

Pleased at his good fortune, Ahmed placed the cross on his chest and mounted the camel which had been left by the Bedouin. The camel took him to a cavern near Agades. Inside he discovered many different kinds of precious jewels and gold treasure which had been hidden and stored there by thousands of caravans.

From that day on, he and his descendants were a similar cross which brought them good health, luck and happiness for the rest of their days.

Today, belief of such legends is old. Yet there are still some people who do believe in them.

From time immemorial, man has known of substances and talismans with the power to change the destiny of those who wear it near their skin.

"I have been using it for more than twenty years and I can't let go of it even for a moment."

Calinche

Nowadays, it's been said that a simple bath of a jewel brings about a certain incantation. Somehow it changes the magnetic field around the human body, turning it into a positive field and repelling the negative waves. Thus, it always attracts beneficial waves to its bearer. (We have all noticed the magnetic attraction of successful persons who are happy, lucky and healthy.)

Magnetic attraction is evident when we speak of the good vibes that we get from someone.

We can cite the example of a young Brazilian musician Calinche, universally recognized for more than decades. Calinche told us her extraordinary history: "Nothing out of the ordinary happened to me before I turned twenty. Then a friend from Europe gave me a cross which seemed to be somehow magical. 15 days later, I won the first prize in the National Lottery. I thought that it was just a mere coincidence. But a month later, I won again. My whole life was transformed because my good luck started coming naturally. And from that day on, I began to introduce myself to the public. Roberto Carlos, Elizeth Cardoso—all the big names of popular music. I must confess that never have I been out gone without the Agades cross not even for a moment."

2-YR.-OLD GIRL RAISED BY PANTHER

VICIOUS LOOKING cat like this one became an abandoned baby's "step-mom"

. . . now she's learning to live as a human, say rescuers

By OTIS DANIELS

A 2-year-old girl who was mothered from infancy by a wild panther has been taken to a rehabilitation center where she is rapidly learning to behave like a human, Indian news agencies report.

Dr Devendra Ghosh, who heads up the department of special education at the Delhi clinic, told reporters that the child is "healthy, happy and making progress by the hour."

Although the entire story of her life might never be known, he said the evidence suggests she was abandoned shortly after birth and raised by a lone female panther.

"She is adept at a ship and is adapting to her new life beautifully," said Dr Ghosh.

The key word is adapt — in the sense that contact with humans has been marginal. When she arrived from Jhansi her manner was cowering and thinking were that of a wild animal. But even though she appears to be at least 18 months old

Reports of a child living in India's central India. The girl was captured in the latest phase of efforts which began when hunters shot her surrogate mother, a dead female panther in mid-May. The group said Dr Varis Parawal, a village medicine man, detected the girl in him thinking that she was cub and persuaded to attend.

There are not recorded ever, so one can imagine what their thoughts were when they saw naked little girl in the jungle, he said.

Her hair was long and matted but she is reasonably good physical condition, but the cubs around the nests were growls. At first she would hesitate when letting her arms drape to the ground."

Parawal said he called the Delhi clinic about the child "because it was obvious she was not your normal child."

WIFE BEATING IS A DISEASE, SAYS EXPERT

Marriage may be dangerous to your physical and mental health if steps are not taken to avoid violence.

If that warning was attached to all marriage applications, fewer wives would be clobbered by their husbands, says a leading sociologist.

A marriage license should be a lethal license, says researcher Murray Straus. Violence is more likely in couples between 15 and 24.

"If we wanted to dramatically reduce the violence rate we could prohibit anyone from getting married before the age of 25," said Straus.

Experts are suffering in a disease that can be predicted and then prevented.

In a recent national study researchers discovered:

One fourth of all murders occur in families and widows are more likely to be assaulted or killed by their husbands or boyfriends than by anyone else.

Almost half of all married couples between the ages of 19 and 24 report violence in their home, ranging from slapping to severe beatings. About one-third of young dating couples get into physical fights.

Male-dominant families are the most violent, especially those in which the woman has a higher level of education.

Totally blind kids painted these pictures!

By SUSAN JIMISON

The kids at a Philadelphia school for the blind perform miracles every day — by painting beautiful pictures although they can't see a thing!

The colorful paintings the students produce are just like the work of sighted kids their age and the art makes the children feel great about themselves, their teacher Susan Rodrigues says.

"I've taught thousands of blind kids since I began working at the Overbrook School for the Blind in 1973," said Susan.

"I've seen that being able to produce a work of art increases the blind artist's self-confidence. And I defy people to find the differences between blind kids' paintings and those done by my students who can see."

Susan teaches her young students to draw by using a special screen that helps them space objects in their paintings and drawings. The kids use their other senses to remember the sounds and sensations of a day at the beach, a walk in the country or a trip to the circus.

"All of these sense memories add up to a kind of vision so that the kids can actually picture things in their minds," said Susan, whose book Art Smart was published in 1984 by Prentice Hall. "These children know from the sense of touch that a face has two eyes and a mouth and that the nose is positioned between them. They can translate that to a painting." And after several the children gauge the distance between objects in their pictures. And sometimes their pictures like incredible details about people that would be unnoticed by sighted artists.

BLIND young artists use small to shape colors and then speak logs like these above here, are incredibly detailed.

"They're little van Goghs," Susan said proudly. "Some of them are remarkably talented artists."

He stabbed Sarah 27 times and then butchered her parents. Cleveland's mom, Margaret, 51, said her son confessed to the murders via one of her visits to the prison.

"Ex-Truck Driver Gets $21,108 a Month Doing What You Aren't"

By Neville E. Levin - Special Feature Writer

Orlando, Fl. - "In only 6 months I went from shopping $1000 and I can take any stranger person and show them exactly how to do it," declares Lawrence Tabak.

Tabak began a few years ago with humble beginnings as a truck driver. But the cash didn't start to roll in until he discovered the tricks known to money making secret.

"Thanks to your ESOP, so my regular day-glow."

Now, on a trial basis, Tabak has begun to share everyday people, just like himself, how to duplicate his new system.

Already the results have been spectacular. For example, one person in St. Augustine wrote that they had made $8,500 in an unbelievably 16 days!

"Tell us matter that you," he states, "only I have discovered an amazing wealth system."

"Put my program into action," he says, "and you are admired driving your sparkling Mercedes, BMW, or Cadillac. You decide your friends with your new dream home. And people see you walking like a champion."

"You can really be the kind of person that you always wanted to be."

And what's more," he adds, "to make an extra $2000 on top, requires little effort."

"Look, there's no magic, secret, and you're not to have to work hard and work. But it's worth it, in fact," he adds. "I only want people who are willing to put forth some effort for me."

Now, you also get under an hour on Tabak, but if you are a real "Go-Getter," you will make even more. And above all, the best part is that you will the respect of your friends and family.

Keep those Nazis where they belong . . .

Put The Wall back up!

I'm so mad I could pop my doc's blood pressure cuff that they're knocking down the Berlin Wall over there in Germany — and good-hearted Americans are falling for this scheme.

As if we didn't have enough problems, now we're let these goose-stepping, beer-guzzling, strudel eaters get back together again. Great!

Now all we have to do is figure out which country we're going to let them invade after they get bored with the compact heads and oberkommit parties.

Let's face it. Germans have never really liked living in their own country. They're always trying to live somewhere else like Poland and France and Czechoslovakia — and the last guys we said we would never let the Japanese were stepping up all the world's prime real estate.

But at least they pay market price for it.

The only offer the Germans ever made for a piece of property came out of the barrel of a cannon.

I mean, what if they came over here and say "We want Disney World."

We'd have to shoot 'em back to the Rhine to keep them from stealing the daylights out of Cinderella's Castle and surrounding Mr. Toad's Wild Ride with mere trinkets.

If those cabbage heads had their way, each time you took the kids to see Mickey Mouse you'd pay the tickets in marks instead of dollars. Donald Duck would be a Nazi and Winnie the Pooh would be on a concentration camp!

You know how I feel about the stinky Russians. But they did the world a favor on August 1961 when they held the ground-breaking ceremony for The Berlin Wall.

They knew what I and about the Germans always wanting to live somewhere else was right. The Wall just fooled 'em into climbing over it and THINKING they were somewhere else! But what's really got me bouncing off the wall is all the liberal, bleeding-heart newspapers blubbering about how great it is that this "fairy-tale reunion that gave us Heaven and Crystal" is back together again.

Hogwash!

Germany gave us fairy tales all right — but it also gave us Adolf Hitler and those stupid-looking Volkswagens.

So when we're all eating Wiener schnitzel, don't tell me I didn't tell you so.

The Wall might go back up pronto — and I'll try the first brick!

Our baby's ghost is terrorizing us

By SUSAN JOHNSON

Sharon and Ray Green and their little girl are being terrorized night and day — by the jealous ghost of their dead baby boy!

Jealous boy's spirit wants his room back

The angry spirit of the child who was stillborn is apparently disturbed that the Greens' 18-month-old daughter Samantha occupies the nursery once intended for him. So he wakes his sister with blood-curdling screams, steals her toys and turns the lights in her room off and on.

The Greens say the ghost of their dead child began to haunt their Luton, England, home right after little Samantha was born. From the first moment they laid their new daughter in her crib, the trouble began.

"I heard noises through the baby monitor, like someone walking around," said Sharon, whose husband runs a jewelry shop. "But when I went upstairs, nothing was disturbed. Toys were moved from one side of the room to the other.

"Chest doors and drawers were opened and shut. Worst of all, Samantha would suddenly burst into tears when she was asleep as if she was having nightmares."

More than once Ray or Sharon would enter Samantha's bedroom to find her standing over her child's bed. Once they heard a voice screaming at their baby to "get out!"

In desperation, Sharon went to visit a psychic — and found out the ghost was her own dead child.

"She told me, 'I see you've brought your son along — he's holding you by the hand,'" Sharon recalled. "I was horrified because I had also felt something breaking my hand.

"When I told her about Samantha's nightmares, she said it was my son tormenting her by saying, 'That room is mine, not yours. I want you out.' She said the ghost was not a baby but much more mature in his other world."

To get rid of the jealous spirit, Sharon and Ray have had the baby's room redecorated. They've also moved Samantha's cot back into their bedroom.

But the ghost still refuses to leave them in peace.

Ray, 32, has tried talking it into leaving. He says he went into Samantha's nursery one night after hearing her screaming hysterically in the night and found her almost asleep.

"The room was very cold and a ball of white light was hovering below the lampshade," Ray said.

"I have certainly it was the ghost baby.

"Then the light began to vibrate violently. I told him firmly, 'Go!' and the white light disappeared through the wall with a whoosh."

Ray believes he has convinced the ghost to go, but Sharon is still frightened.

"I'm so afraid that every time I hear noises upstairs I have to get out of the house and take Samantha with me," she said.

FRIGHTENED family. Sharon and Ray Green and their daughter Samantha, who are all victims of the jealous ghost.

12 Commandments of marriage

By SUSAN MacGOY

Couples stand a better chance of staying out of the divorce courts, says Dr. Paul Mickey. If they prepare themselves for the down side of wedded life — and follow the 12 commandments of marriage.

A Texas University divinity professor, marriage counselor and author of Tough Marriage — How to Make a Difficult Relationship Work (Morrow), Dr. Mickey believes couples tend to idealize marriage, rather than face it realistically.

"Everyone has problems with their marriage," Dr. Mickey, 49, who has been married 24 years, said. "I've had things too. But people should try to make a marriage work and there are a number of helpful things you can do."

Dr. Mickey offers this list of rules for wedded bliss that he calls the 12 commandments of marriage:

1. Get counseling before you marry: Talking with your pastor or a marriage counselor will help bring unspoken problems to light so they can be faced and dealt with before you tie the knot.

2. Put your mate on a pedestal: Treat him or her like someone special. Make sacrifices and help reduce pressures on your mate. Learn to forgive and forget.

3. Make a break with your parents: You're married to your mate, not mom and dad.

4. Be truthful and use the language of love: Communicating with patience and understanding — rather than anger and insult — will lead to a closer bond.

5. Plan time together: Don't just eat, make love and sleep together — take turns to be with one another.

6. Encourage the best in your spouse: Complement him or her on good points, lovingly point out flaws that can be rectified.

7. Commit yourself to religion: Attend a church or synagogue so that you learn there the biggest things than your marriage to think about.

8. Curb lust: Not just sexual lust, but lust for things like work and money. Keep your hungers under control.

9. Slow down: A little peace and relaxation reduces stress on a marriage.

10. Be thankful: Marriage lasts a long time and you'll need to change your views, your lifestyle as the years pass. Don't panic as you lose jobs, children, friends or sexual power.

11. Get some time alone: Solitude builds strength and perspective and teaches you to survive without total dependence.

12. Learn to let go: Try to be like a child in your wonder at new places and concepts and like a wise man who is never surprised or shocked by life. Release your grasp on false ideas and replace them with greater truths.

Newest status symbol — plush burial plots

High-living Yuppies snap up fancy digs for dying

People who already have the "right" house in the "right" neighborhood, drive the "right" car and send their kids to the "right" schools have a new status symbol — burial plots with a view in prestigious and pricey cemeteries.

By JOHN BLACKBURN

"Successful young people — Yuppies — are buying cemetery lots in record numbers," says Duane Sterling of the Pre-Arrangement Association, a nationwide organization dedicated to selling funeral plans on the basis of help now, die later.

"And since they're well-to-do, have the money to spend," he continues, "they're able to buy expensive caskets — and select impressive grave sites in the 'right' cemeteries."

Back in the 1940s during days, just 10 percent of Americans in their late 20s and early 30s — the age of most Yuppies — made their funeral arrangements in advance.

"Now that number has climbed to 40 percent," he explains. "There's a virtual struggle of these well-heeled, young professionals just dying to get into the cemeteries of their choice.

"And why not? Real estate is real estate. And whether it's a Florida bedroom with an ocean view or a final resting place in tasteful surroundings, real estate is getting scarce."

The cost of dying isn't getting any cheaper either. Some posh plots now carry a hefty $15,000 price tag and they're only going to get more expensive, Sterling said.

He told Ruel he was "a prime, forward-thinking type of young man."

Ruel admitted stocking Bertram's car while Sterling was helping victims of the bus crash in Scarborough, Ontario, Canada.

"I couldn't stand the pain!"

Hotheaded nun slugs monk during bizarre ritual!

By RAMON RAY

A Buddhist nun punched a monk and ran screaming from a temple when the wooden sticks he pushed into her head and set on fire burned her scalp!

"I wanted to be a devoted nun but not bad enough to suffer like that," Jenny Lin Goh, 23, told newsmen in Singapore.

"I've never felt such pain," she continued. "My flesh was burning. My head was on fire. I've never gone through anything like it."

The incredible drama unfolded when Miss Goh and several other young women were scheduled to be initiated as Buddhist nuns in a Singapore temple.

Their heads were shaved. And in keeping with tradition, monks pushed sharp wooden sticks into their heads and set them on fire.

The would-be nuns were expected to endure the pain without so much as a whimper or grimace. But Miss Goh couldn't stand it and slugged the monk who lit her sticks square in the face. She then ran screaming from the temple while hundreds of Buddhist holy men and women watched.

Not every woman is meant to be a nun. That woman certainly wasn't," said Lay Tark Tan, the monk Miss Goh slugged.

The endurance of pain is something we all face. We mustn't let it get the best of us. If we do, it is a sign that we are lacking in devotion."

Miss Goh agreed that she wasn't cut out to be a nun and was very apologetic about hitting the monk. "I just wish I had had the courage to walk away without resorting to violence," she said.

Retirement is going to be impossible for baby boomers when they reach 65 — because folks in their 30s and 40s right now aren't saving anything for their old age.

Experts believe by the time baby boomers are ready to quit working, Social Security will be able to supply only 30 to 40 percent of the income necessary to live comfortably. If middle-income folks don't put away something on their own, they'll face a drastic reduction in living standards.

The American Academy of Pension Actuaries says the crunch will come from skyrocketing health care costs, short-sighted govern-

GHOST TRAIN SAVES 2

. . . this headline told an incredible

Railroad engineer Jim Murphy saw the ghostly image of a locomotive highballing toward him on the tracks ahead and, in a rush of panic, brought his own train to a screeching stop — only scant feet from a washed-out bridge!

Murphy's four-car "Prairie Land Express" was bound for St. Louis, Missouri, on the night of July 1, 1891, with 200 passengers and a six-man crew, according to an old newspaper report.

It was a destination Murphy's had rumbled onto the splintered, twisted bridge that had collapsed only minutes earlier into the raging, flood-swollen waters of the Missouri River. "It was a ghost train that saved us all from a horrible some company with the unknown. "When I saw the light of that train rapping straight at me I said, 'Jimmy, my boy, prepare to meet your Maker.'

"I hit the brake and I thought for a moment that the tender was going to shoot right over my cab.

"It seemed like we skidded along the tracks for miles and I kept seeing the light of that other locomotive dead ahead. Only it didn't seem to be getting any closer.

"After I finally got my train stopped, I stared down from the train. I could just make out its shape on the dark beyond the washed-out bridge. There was no mistaking that it was a locomotive.

"But as I watched, the engine just started to fade before my eyes. It grew dimmer and dimmer until I could actually see right through it. Then it vanished."

As incredible as Murphy's story sounded, few if any of the folks in those parts thought of him as a liar.

When the pain didn't stop after the babies were delivered, doctors ordered extensive tests — and found an incurable malignancy on her spinal cord.

"I was in a lot of shock because I just didn't expect it," said Elonna, who had the deadly tumor removed from her spine a month after the babies were born. "I just looked at the doctor and said, 'You're telling me I'm dying?' He said, 'Yes.'

She got the boot for eating a canary, but . . .

Naughty cat walks 450 miles home

. . . and does it again!

A canary-gobbling kitty named Murka was exiled to a faraway city for feasting on her family's pet birds. But amazing Murka found her way home a year later — after trudging 450 miles through ice and snow!

By JOE BERGER

Then, four days after her relatives welcomed her home with open arms, the cantankerous tabby turned right around — and chomped another canary!

"I don't know what we're going to do with that cat," moaned Anna Dmitrov told reporters in Moscow, Russia.

"Murka is a sweet thing, and she worked so hard to get back home we hate to give her away again.

"But we love our birds, too, and it breaks our hearts when she eats them."

The misadventures of the mischievous kitty began last year when she gobbled up two of the seven canaries Anna and her hubby Vladimir kept in their three-room apartment.

"She seemed to be getting such a fondness for the birds we decided we had to send her away," Anna recalled.

So the heartbroken housewife and her hubby carried naughty Murka off to live with a cousin in Voronezh, 450 miles southeast of Moscow. But the stuffed meower disappeared from Cousin Nikolai's home two days later — and hit the road for home.

"We didn't know she was coming home, and we imagined all kinds of terrible things had happened to her," said Anna, 37. "We felt very sad.

"It was very cold and snowy outside when she ran away and we kept thinking she'd freeze to death and it was all our fault.

"We really thought she was gone forever and we'd never see her again."

But a year after the vanished, the well-traveled tabby showed up in the stairwell of the couple's apartment building one morning as Vladimir was leaving for work. The bedraggled cat had a cash in one ear, had lost a chunk of her tail — and appeared to be pregnant.

"We have no idea how she found her way home, but she obviously had a lot of adventures along the way," her dumbfounded mistress told reporters.

"We were delighted to see her."

Delighted, that is, until the famished feline knocked down a cage door and gobbled down another of their canaries.

"Now we have a real problem," Anna said.

"We love our birds, but how could we possibly give Murka away after she made it 450 miles to get home? We're going to keep her."

Man talks so long to 911 he can't escape fire!

By JACK ALLMANDE

A gabby bachelor died in a trailer fire — because he argued with the emergency 911 operator until it was too late to escape.

"We believe he literally talked himself to death instead of getting out of the trailer as fast as he could," said a fire department spokeswoman.

Russell Hong, 32, died of carbon monoxide poisoning after being trapped in a rear bedroom of the trailer in Sierra City, Iowa. Hong apparently awakened shortly before 6 a.m. to find his rented trailer home in flames. He immediately dialed 911.

A transcript of the phone conversation revealed Hong kept talking on the phone after giving the operator his address and the extent of the fire.

"He was trapped in the back bedroom and the fire was in the front of the trailer. That was where the only exit was located," said Police Sgt. Terry Kern. The 911 dispatcher was ready to send firemen to the address as soon as Hong got off the phone.

"Finally, Hong said, 'I've gotta go O.K.,' and hung up," said Sgt. Kern.

Hong apparently collapsed and died from carbon monoxide fumes after he hung up.

A faulty hot water heater was blamed for the blaze which destroyed the small trailer.

She danced with me but played with the band

AMERICA'S MOST OUTSPOKEN ADVICE COLUMNIST

Dear Dotti: My boss was going to be out of town for a few days, and he asked me to take his wife out to dinner so she wouldn't get lonely while he was gone.

I did — and that's when my troubles began. We had a nice dinner at a fancy French restaurant, and afterward she wanted to go to a nightclub.

We danced several times before the band took a break. As soon as it did, she announced her call to go to the ladies' room. Twenty minutes passed and she didn't come back, so I went backstage to the bathrooms to see if she was all right.

Well, Dotti, I was shocked. That woman wasn't in the bathroom at all. She was stripped to the waist — wrestling with the entire Newman band! I finally got her almost back on and took her home. But she made me promise not to tell her husband what went on. What should I do, Dotti? Keep my mouth shut or tell the boss what his wife does behind his back? — Need Help in Houston

Dear Need: If your boss doesn't know his wife is a floozy that's his tough luck. Forget what you saw and keep your mouth shut. The next time the guy goes out of town tell him to get another baby sitter for his cheatin' wife.

I'm fed up with boots from fat folks

Dear Dotti: I'm sick and tired of hearing fat people complain about the way other folks make fun of them. Everybody is supposed to feel so sorry for fatties, but what about skinny people like me? I've done everything to put on weight and I still look like a toothpick. And let me tell you, Dotti, people make fun of me as much as they do fatty hottentots. Please print this letter. It's something I had to get off my chest. — Skinny in Montreal

Dear Skinny: I've got more sympathy than a mountain road, but I can certainly sympathize with what you are saying. Perhaps some of the time, and I've much of it too, I should stop gagging and long enough to look in the mirror and see how disgusting they really are.

Does my picture turn you on, Dotti?

Dear Dotti: Women say I'm the handsomest man they've ever seen, but I don't know if they're kidding or what. I've enclosed a picture. What do you think? — Wondering in New York

Dear Wondering: You've got such fine pearly teeth and a manly face I suspect Tinseltown gals pass you up in droves because — or such.

My pothead son is having a real dope

Dear Dotti: My 16-year-old son quit school even my objections and has totally gone to weed. He won't lift a finger to help me around the house and spends most of his time in his room smoking pot and drinking beer. I've begged him to get a job, but he just laughs in my face. What can I do to make him wake up? — Wit's End to Trenton

Dear Wit's End: Your son is a pot-head. Maybe he'll wake up when all of your well-meant help runs out of your pocket. Then forget you ever knew him and get on with YOUR life.

I'm 34 years old but afraid of girls

Dear Dotti: I'm a 34-year-old man, and I'm afraid of girls. I've only had one date in my life, and I fainted that by throwing up at dinner. I really would like to have someone to talk to and share my life with. Can you help? — Lonely in Kansas

Dear Shy: There's four points, sir! Afraid of girls? Honey, there's only one thing you can do — just prove it's a man!

Dotti will answer your letters — and will be glad to help solve yours. Write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.

Ask the Countess

Did chain letter put a curse on me?

Dear Countess: A few years ago I received a chain letter that I tossed in the trash, and my life has been a nightmare since. I've wrecked and destroyed six cars. My brother was murdered. And all my clothes were destroyed in a flood. Do you think the chain letter had anything to do with my bad luck? Can I do anything to change it? — Troubled in Florida

Dear Troubled: The experts let me you threw away enough all your bad luck. Fortunately, a dear friend of mine specializes in such matters. And she performed a ritual that has really changed your luck for the better. Once the word chain letter that you don't wear so pale on. That half-witted it from causing you any trouble in the future.

Dear Countess: Before my husband died he told me that he wasn't the father of one of my daughters. Needless to say I was stunned. Now I've been told that my husband was telling the truth, that means some other man must have come to bed with me while I was asleep. Is another man the father of my daughter, Countess? If so, do you know who he is? — Bewildered in Washington

Dear Bewildered: That husband told you the truth, my dear, but certainly not to hurt you. He was simply and honestly trying in desperation to arrange for another man to make you pregnant. That man's name is J G

Spats at work No. 1 cause of stress!

By CINDY O'NEIL

Quarreling with your coworkers is the No. 1 cause of stress — and a recent study proves it!

"Arguments with your spouse or children are certainly distressing, but arguments with a workmate or a boss are the most stressful on a day-to-day basis," reports Niall Bolger, a social psychologist at the University of Denver.

Bolger and researchers from the University of Michigan and the University of British Columbia conducted the study in Detroit.

One hundred sixty-six married couples recorded their daily encounters with hostility, anxiety and depression. More than 12,000 incidents were documented over a six-week period and the most serious episodes appeared to be work-related, not domestic.

Even though domestic disputes were twice as frequent, workplace squabbles caused more immediate harm.

"When you have an argument with your wife or husband, you know that they love you," says Bolger. "But at the office there just isn't the same degree of understanding.

"It's one thing to argue about who's going to bring the kids to school that morning. It's another to argue about whether you are going to have a job tomorrow or get a promotion."

Advice from the psychologist: "Office squabbles should be nipped in the bud."

Think twice before you take Aunt Martha's advice

Common beliefs that are really BALONEY!

How many times did your mom, aunt or granny tell you, after you burned your finger on a hot pan, to rub butter on the boo-boo to take the pain away?

WRONG! WRONG! WRONG!

Smearing butter on a burn is the worst thing to do! and can actually make the injury more painful. Cold water or ice is the best treatment.

That's the advice of authors Graham and Sylvana Noore in their myth-debunking book Don't You Believe It (Ward Lock Limited, London, England).

"The Noores have taken hundreds of common, everyday beliefs handed down from generation to generation and set them right. Some of the myths they've corrected include:

● Coffee picks you up. Actually, coffee's a downer. Caffeine, the stimulant, only supplies a brief bit of energy. Then the body is more tired than before.

● Fresh lemons are yellow. Huh, uh! Fresh lemons are green and taste terrible. Farmers ripen lemons for up to three months to turn them yellow and mellow the taste.

● Chocolate gives you pimples. The tasty sweet won't make you pop out in pimples. The ugly blotches are caused by hormonal changes in teens and by a virus in adults.

● Spinach will make you strong as the Hulk like Popeye. This one was believed for 1,800 years, but actually the iron content of spinach is low. Only when it was discovered that a scientist accidentally put the decimal point in the wrong place.

● Chop suey comes from China. The popular dish is an all-American creation. It was created in New York in 1896 by a chef at the Chinese Embassy trying to prepare a banquet for both Oriental and Western guests. He tossed everything he could think of in the wok — and it was a hit.

● Moles are blind. While in their tunnels underground, moles certainly use their senses of smell, touch and hearing. But these little animals do have tiny eyes which are weak, but do enable them to see shapes ahead.

● Stomach troubles make rheumatism flare up. While joints may have extra twinges on certain days, it is the changes in atmospheric pressure on joints and not digestive that cause the aches and pains.

● Spaghetti is an Italian invention. Hard as it may be to get the owner of your local pasta parlor to accept it, spaghetti does not come from Italy. Famed traveler Marco Polo brought the noodles back from China with him.

● Fish is brain food. This fallacy probably rises from the fact that both fish and the brain contain phosphorus. But the fact is the brain doesn't use up its phosphorus content and has to be fed to be topped off from time to time.

● Watching too much TV can ruin your eyes. Excess viewing may be hard on the muscles around the eyes but it doesn't affect the eyesight.

● George Washington was the first President of the United States. Nope. It was John Hanson. There were 14 heads of the Continental Congress from 1774 to 1788 and all were called President. The 15th President probably never stepped down a cherry tree, either.

● Men are tougher than women. An experiment at a London hospital has proven that, while men may be generally stronger than women, women can bather withstand pain and discomfort.

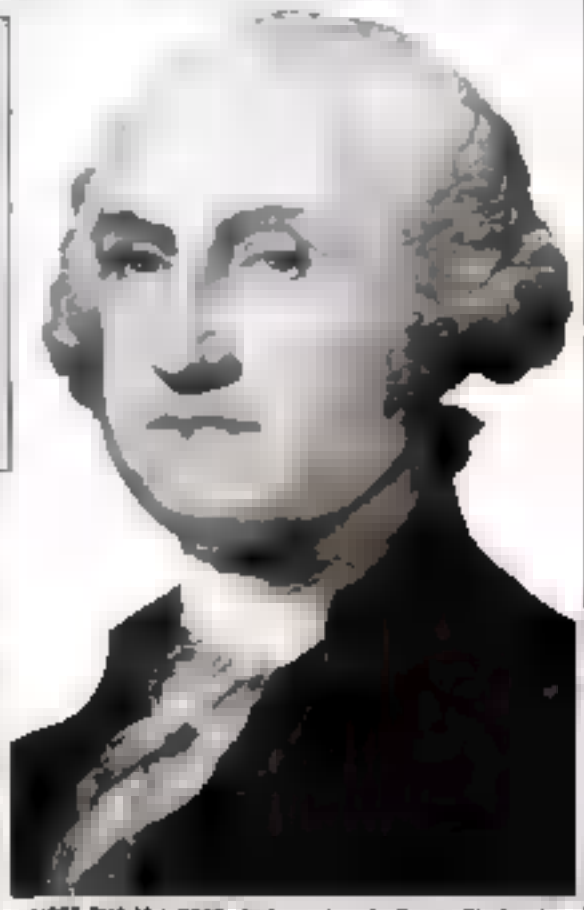
In the experiment, an electrical jolt was applied to the subjects.

Men screamed for the experiment to stop, while the women were still laughing, said researchers.

Butter on burns? BALONEY!

Coffee is an upper? BALONEY!

TV hurts the eyes? BALONEY!



AREN'T THAT THE PITS. And you thought George Washington was really the first! Nope. There was 14 before him.

FISH may make good but they won't help the brain much.

COFFEE is really a downer that leaves you more tired than before.

Old lady stuck 30 hours in pit filled with garbage

Elderly Stella Johns spent 30 horrifying hours in a 30-foot-deep pit — mired knee-deep in stinking garbage slop.

"It was awful. I've never been more scared in my life," said Mrs. Johns, 81, of Blackshearville, Pa. "One rat crawled right over me."

The frail old lady fell into the stony dump as she leaned in a bag of empty cans. "I hollered for help but no one heard me," she said.

"I stopped and it took a very long time to get up. There was no crack you'd down there. Then I tried to get out but I got stuck in the mud and in the garbage," she said.

frightening ordeal from 11 a.m. on a Friday until 4:30 p.m. the next day — 30 terrifying hours.

A worried son and daughter alerted police, who launched a search on Saturday for Mrs. Johns. Her son found her.

Mrs. Johns was rushed to Good Samaritan Hospital in nearby Pottsville, suffering from bruises and exposure.

"She's fine, now. We're all very thankful," said Mrs. Johns' daughter.

Incredible powder made from chicken feet cures everything!

By HENRY WEBER

A veterinarian who discovered that a powder made from chicken feet cures everything from acne and ulcers has all but given up his dream of selling the product in the United States.

Dr. Harry Robertson said that the FDA's concerns over sanitation and testing have made it too troublesome to peddle the powder as a [redacted] supplement that could benefit millions of people nationwide.

"Chicken feet are the greatest medical advance since penicillin but the FDA doesn't want to believe it," said the veterinarian from Salisbury, Md.

"An extract from the foot nerve area, chigger bites, gun shot wounds, burns and malnutrition. It also clears up stomach ulcers and gangrene.

"It's a shame that something like that isn't available to the people who could benefit from it."

Dr. Robertson discovered that chicken feet had medicinal value when he burned himself while extracting protein and amino acids from a hoof he got from a slaughterhouse.

Some of the ointment he used got on the burn. A few minutes later, the pain was gone.

"It was pure astonishingly blind luck," said Dr. Robertson. "In a summary of tests the powder cleared up gangrene, ulcers and stomach ulcers as well as chigger bites and other wounds."

. . . but govt. bigwigs won't let you buy it, says doc

The FDA required years of rigorous testing of medicines and drugs before they can be put on the market. And the agency sought to keep Dr. Robertson from selling powdered chicken feet under the trade name Revivo in the United States pending more thorough studies.

VETERINARIAN Harry Robertson sits among thousands of chicken feet — the raw material for the doc's amazing cure-all, which he says is good for acne, chigger bites, gunshot wounds, burns, malnutrition and stomach ulcers

Infant's scream shocks delivery room . . .

'NOT AGAIN!'

INFANT'S actions may seem to us more than an angry cone of a past life, but per on the possessed

By JOHN CHAPMAN

A newborn boy screamed, "Not again!" seconds after he was delivered, a respected obstetrician reports.

"As God is my witness that infant spoke to us right there," said Dr. Grigoris Farakos, chief of obstetrics at the People's Free Clinic in Athens, Greece.

"Don't ask me why or how because I don't have any explanation. All I can tell you is that the boy screamed the words in English in a voice that was undeniably strong and clear.

"I know it sounds crazy. But it was almost like he was angry or afraid to be born."

The delivery room outburst was widely publicized after a hospital employee leaked the story to the Greek press.

Dr. Farakos and four other delivery room staffers reluctantly confirmed the report at the request of the baby's parents — who believe in reincarnation and don't doubt for a minute that their son has lived before.

"We all live many times," explained the mother, who requested anonymity. "Of course, I didn't hear my son speak because I was sedated during labor.

"In a way it makes me sad. He must have had a hard time in his past life.

"Otherwise why wouldn't he want to be born again?"

The baby hasn't spoken since the day he was born. But the child appears to be healthy in spite of his low five-pound birth weight. And he should develop normally, Dr. Farakos said.

"Naturally I'm talking about his physical maturity," he added.

"It is too early to say much about his psychological development."

Nikolaos Vassilou, a respected paranormal researcher from Athens, agreed with Dr. Farakos.

"At this early date it is impossible to say whether the boy was born with an unusual memory of a past life or suddenly acquired a couple of words," he said.

"Fortunately his parents are open-minded."

This is the second time in the past four years a child has been born screaming the words, "Not again." The previous birth, reported in The NEWS, occurred in Salzburg, Austria.

Here comes the judge!

MAGISTRATE Louis Tidwell has been charged in teen sex and drug scandal, say cops.

By JACK ALEXANDER

Close friends were shocked when gray-haired Judge Louis Tidwell was arrested on charges of luring young girls to his home for sex and drugs — but his neighbors weren't surprised.

"Here comes the judge. Here comes the judge," neighbors chanted as cops handcuffed Tidwell and took him to a Tampa, Fla., jail.

Twelve grams of crack cocaine and a videotape depicting sex acts between young girls and a man believed to be Tidwell were discovered in his plush condo, said police.

His Honor traded drugs for sex with teen girls, say cops

The 51-year-old judge, who has been on the bench 10 years, is accused of enticing barefoot girls to his condo with free drinks and then giving them drugs and money to perform sex acts, cops said.

"I'm really shocked. There was having problems and the thought never entered my mind," said Judge Daniel Gallagher, a longtime colleague of Tidwell.

"I respected him and I thought he was very competent," said Judge Gallagher. "Certainly this is not in character from what I know of him."

But others described the divorced judge in wildly differing terms.

"He was a pervert. I didn't know he was a judge until last night. I thought he was a cocaine dealer," said neighbor Gregg Collins.

"There were young girls parading in and out of his house all the time — religiously. They stood in front of my house during their parties

Boy's letter to granny gets 'special delivery'

Little letter-writer Jason Inman sent his grandma a loving letter — and it was a miracle the note ever got to her.

Jason, 7, popped his letter in the mail in Orleans — a town near Ottawa — without a stamp, without the right street name and without apartment number or postal code. But kind Canadian postal workers saw to it that the painstakingly printed message got to its destination. Anyway, much to the delight of grandmother Margaret Prase of London, Ontario.

"Somebody at the post office had a warm heart," said Mrs. Prase, 68.

Actually, Jason hadn't done such a bad job of corresponding with his grandma. He had no stamp, but he knew he should have one — so the clever kid drew his own stamp on the envelope.

Postal officials say they're going to send the child a book explaining how to properly address a letter. But in the meantime they're all the more for a second letter, this time from Jason's little sis, Angela, 5.

It seems when Angela heard about Jason's letter she wrote one of her own to Grandma — she got her letter in the mail-bag with no name and a two-word address: "Grandma Prase."

By IRWIN FRIEDA

A skinny young model literally ate herself to death, gobbling down 17 pounds of food in one massive meal!

According to the respected French medical journal Pathology, 19-year-old Tasha Chevalier's stomach split open causing her to bleed to death after eating her fatal feast.

Doctors say she ate two sirloin steaks, three baked potatoes, a whole head of cauliflower, a loaf of buttered garlic bread, four tall glasses of milk, a half bottle of wine, a whole turkey breast, two dozen chicken wings, pickled pigs' feet and two quarts of chow mein!

Dr. Phillip Gagnon determined exactly what the fright victim ate by weighing and analyzing the enormous food ball that was removed from her stomach.

He confirmed his findings by cross-checking the partially-digested food with the bottles and containers that were found in the kitchen where she died.

"She literally ate herself to death," Dr. Gagnon of Paris said in his report to Pathology. "When she was found, her abdomen was horribly distended and her stomach had actually split open.

"It must have been an excruciating death. But her appetite was such that she couldn't

Boys and girls

No matter what women's libbers say, the sexes will never be equal — because men and women's brains are different, says a top doc.

Gals would be a whole lot happier if they'd just accept that they're different, says British geneticist Anne Moir. She's written a new book, Brain Sex, with David Jessel that outlines the differences between the sexes.

"Men and women are equal only in that they're both human. To say they're the same in aptitude, skill or behavior is to build a society based on a biological and scientific lie," says Dr. Moir, who spent 10 years researching the differences.

and because their brains are "wired" differently. They process information differently so they have wildly different ideas, place importance on different things and act different, says Dr. Muir.

Women's lifters have explained away the fact that guys and gals act differently because they're brought up differently, says Dr. Muir. But this simply isn't true.

New scientists like Dr. Muir are saying that men and women are the way they are because of the way they're made. For example, women feel pain faster and more sharply than men do, but they can stand pain for longer periods of time than men can.

when they get hurt but boys will tough it out, and why women can endure long hours of pain during childbirth.

It's also been found that men and women have a different sense of taste. Women like sweets better than men do, but men can taste salty things better than women can.

Dr. Muir thinks women should accept themselves for what they are and stop trying to be like men. They will never be able to do some things as well as a man no matter how hard they try.

She lists the following as some of the most typical traits of the sexes.

- Good at remembering
- More sympathetic
- Better at languages
- A better judge of character
- Better hearing, sight vision and smell
- Needs less sleep than men
- Good at managing people

Bighearted kids give up lunchtime every day to help a sick classmate

By MARTHA ATKINS

Plucky teen Alan Stonier suffers from a crippling lung disease, but he's leading a normal life thanks to his bighearted schoolmates who give up their lunchtime to help him.

Fifteen of his best friends at Wood Hey High School in Knightsham, England, are giving Alan special medical treatments every day.

They use a special machine to pump his chest and back. The stimulation from this therapy clears his congested lungs. Thanks to their lunch hour sessions, he can stay in school and go on with his studies.

Alan, 16, has cystic fibrosis, a disease that causes a buildup of mucus in the lungs. He needs medical treatment three times a day to clear this deadly build-up.

Boy has to have treatments at noon just to get through the day

"Although cystic fibrosis is a progressive disease, as Alan's case is taken it gets treated at all and regularly, Headmaster Paul Dell has said he's attributed that to the kind concern of Alan's friends.

"They are very understanding and extremely reliable."

Alan used to have to leave school every afternoon, but his mother, Heather, felt this was a major disruption of his school life.

When the boy's classmates learned his schoolwork was suffering they stepped in to help.

The youthful teens gave up their free time to teach him. Grant Alan.

It didn't take long for him to learn what to do from a trained therapist, said Head master Dell. "Alan's now completed and completed with greater."

Without the therapy at lunchtime, Alan would be unable to make it through the day.

"Just before lunch, I often start to get out of breath and cough a lot. I can't walk very far. It makes me feel tired," he said.

As soon as the lunch bell rings, Alan's school-mates leave reports for work.

The gang's attention is very thankful for his caring friends. "After a session, I'm instantly better. I'm very grateful to them," he said.

And his schoolmates count themselves fortunate to have the spunky teen.

"Working with Alan makes you realize just how lucky you are," said Debbie Ring, 16.

But youngster Alan believes that, thanks to them, he's the lucky one, because now he's just like other kids.

SCHOOLMATES give Alan Stonier a creative treatment to help relieve the congestion that builds up in his lungs.

Killer's kids get victim's estate

Steven Benson's kids will get a chunk of their dead granny's $10 million estate even though their dad murdered her.

The Second District Court of Appeals upheld a lower court ruling that said Benson's three small children can inherit part of their grandmother's fortune.

Slippery robber turns bank job into comedy of errors

About 40 cops with automatic weapons surrounded a bank for a tense two hours to catch an armed robber — but he was long gone.

A man wearing a derby hat and a long, curly black wig had walked into a Tampa, Fla., bank hours earlier with a handgun.

The bandit ordered the manager to round up everyone in the bank. He told a teller to get some cash in a bag and next her to the vault for more.

The teller found three other bank employees in the vault and told them the bank was being robbed.

As the teller started to walk out of the vault, an employee in the lobby believed that the robber had fled. But the women in the vault panicked, pulled the teller inside and locked the vault door.

Police arrived and told bank employees to wait outside. But when the women in the vault didn't emerge, cops wondered if the robber had really left.

As the armed officers surrounded the bank, other cops searched inside for the suspect. Apparently, he had escaped before police arrived. The women in the vault were finally released.

Real-life Dr. Frankenstein breeding man-apes

NIGHTMARISH RESULT of Dr. Anton Jonbach's experiments look remarkably like this Stone Age man, left. "He even turns from ordinary apes, snarling and can succeed with him," said an expert.

By SCOTTY PAUL

There is indisputable evidence that a mad Austrian scientist has successfully recreated a monster from the Stone Age — a Neanderthal man.

"At least three of the half-human, half-ape creatures have been spotted, but there could be many more out there," said Hans Goerts, a spokesman for Interpol, the world-wide police agency.

The hairy monsters are the insane handiwork of Dr Anton Jonbach, a real-life Dr Frankenstein, who lost his license to practice in Austria 20 years ago.

Frightening reports that Dr Jonbach was fertilizing the eggs of apes and monkeys with human sperm began circulating five years ago. The NEWS first reported his fiendish experiments in April of 1961.

"There is no doubt Dr Jonbach has been successful in creating a Neanderthal man with the strength of a gorilla and a brilliant mind," said Dr Lars Ramquist of the respected Karolinska research hospital in Stockholm, Sweden.

"We are extremely concerned the twisted mind of Dr Jonbach has unleashed some evil beings on society as revenge for his banishment from medical practice. This is not whispers — it's madness!"

Interpol has questioned villagers who worked with Dr Jonbach in a mountain laboratory near San Martino del Calvi in northern Italy.

"They gave us snapshots of the first monster created by the mad doctor. They are not of good quality but we are circulating the photographs around the world," said Interpol Agent Goerts. "The creatures have human eyes, downward ears and are covered with hair. As far as we know, they are girls but don't tell."

Shortly after the first specimen's shots were taken, he went berserk and crushed two of Dr Jonbach's aides with his bare hands.

"They tried to tranquilize and cage the beast but he escaped and is still at large," said Agent Goerts. "He's been spotted several times in wooded areas but stays pretty close to home."

Another creature was seen in a Paris, France, train station and a third was seen on a beach in Italy.

"A tavist agent in Paris said the hairy ape was with a man who resembles Dr. Jonbach," said Agent Goerts.

Apprehending Dr Jonbach and his ape-like creatures is a top priority of Interpol agents throughout the world.

"There's no telling what murderous type monsters he's turned loose on the world," said Agent Goerts. "Dr. Jonbach and his

Want big bucks? Sell leaves to Florida

While folks up north are raking and cursing the leaves cluttering their lawn, Florida residents are rushing to stores to buy those very same leaves — for up to 12 bucks a bag!

Most of the leaves, shipped in from as far away as Oregon and Canada, are being snatched up by former Northerners who miss the colorful symbol of autumn.

"People come in inquiring to buy them," said nursery salesman Pam Holliday of Tamarac. "It brings back the memories of childhood. And we're sold out!"

Even Florida supermarkets are getting the spirit. Shoppers can buy up a bag of leaves along with their groceries.

"I just don't want to be in this world killing people," said Steven Smith, 25, convicted of killing Dr. Kathryn Hinnant. "I might as well get burnt instead of spending 25 years to life in jail."

Smith was living in a tiny machinery room of New York City's Bellevue Hospital at the time of the murder. The ricksnummed the halls posing as a surgeon with a stolen ID card and a stethoscope around his neck.

"He took great joy moving around the hospital and stalking people, making like part of the scenery," said Pedro Campuzano, [redacted] ward.

Pretty Dr. Hinnant, 31, was working alone in her window less 7- by 10-foot office in the isolated part of the hospital when Smith attacked her.

The fiend choked her into with one punch, sending blood spurting everywhere. Then he strangled her with electrical cord he was carrying and sexually assaulted her corpse.

As the five-months-pregnant victim lay dead on the floor, the savage punk stole her $1,300 mink coat, $70 watch and her credit cards.

Cops arrested Smith at a drug shelter two days later after three derelicts — spurred by a $50,000 reward — gave them the dead woman's credit cards which they said Smith had been carrying.

Smith led cops to a locker where Dr. Hinnant's fur coat and his food stamp photo ID card were found.

The shy victim wished to work at Bellevue because she was concerned about the poor and the helpless.

"It's tragic that she was victimized by one of the very people she was trying to help," said a family friend.

EVIL regent Steven Smith hatched his murderous scheme while hiding out at New York's Bellevue Hospital.

Electric company bawls out tot for releasing balloons

Little Joseph McKeown released a bunch of balloons on his birthday — and got in trouble with the power company.

The Indianapolis 3-year-old got a letter from Anderson Municipal Light & Power complaining that his helium balloons had shorted out a power line 10 miles north of his house. The balloons cut off power for half an hour to 11 homes, the letter said.

"This was a freak accident, but you should be aware of how dangerous power lines can be," scolded the company's line superintendent in the sternly worded letter.

Joseph and his dad had attached notes and messages to the balloons giving the little boy's name and address — but they didn't expect the kind of response they got.

Sheik shells out $700G — to get his teeth cleaned!

"They spent money like there was no tomorrow.

Three gorillas who escaped from a Canadian zoo ate apples, oranges and a book on ape behavior.

Keepers broke up the rampage spree by spraying the gorillas with fire extinguishers to get them back to their pen.

Pickup owner fights snooty law

By JACK ALEXANDER

Homeowners across America could benefit from a bachelor's battle against nit-picking snobs who won't let him park his pickup in his own driveway.

. . . that says he can't park in his own driveway!

"They say I either have to sell my truck, sell my house, or park outside of town and walk back home. Tell me that makes a lot of sense," said Jim Mims, 30.

Mims said the real estate agent didn't tell him about the city's kooky pickup truck ordinance when he bought a two-bedroom home in Fleetmoor, MI.

"I have a garage, but I prefer to park my pickup in my driveway," he said. "It's my property. I pay my taxes. My pickup is a child thinks it looks better than a lot of cars."

Mims says a retired busybody from the upper side of Fleetmoor has called the cops on him several times for parking in his own driveway.

Instead of paying about $300 in parking fines, Mims has filed a lawsuit to overturn the ordinance.

"Just because a few of these snobs in the city part of town don't like pickups is no reason to pass such a stupid law," said the determined bachelor. "I understand subdivisions all over the United States have similar ordinances. Maybe if I win, it will help everybody who owns a pickup."

Mims said these "hoity-toity" rich guys on the other side of town feel that pickups are unsightly, lower property values and give the town a blue-collar image.

"I'm a blue-collar worker and damn proud of it," said Mims. "America's made up of blue-collar workers, and they own a lot of pickups.

"Why should these holier-than-thou big shots be able to tell me how I'm telling us what kind of vehicle to buy and where to park it?

"Maybe it's time we told them where they can park it."

Eve reunion Bigfoot

Dying man to bid final farewell to a gentle giant!

By JANET DAVIES

Fur trapper Armand Loubet will again keep a bizarre Christmas Eve rendezvous with a gentle Bigfoot who has visited his wilderness cabin on that holy night for the past 12 years!

The hairy, man-like creature will leave a gift of meat but only if Loubet makes certain that no animals suffer in the steel jaws of his traps on the day before Christ's birthday.

"Bigfoot is my friend," Loubet told newsmen after undergoing medical tests in Edmonton, Canada.

"But this might be the last year that I see him. The doctors told me I had cancer five years ago and I've already lived longer than they expected. So I'll be at my cabin this Christmas Eve and I hope the Bigfoot will make one last visit."

As Dan reported in The NEWS in 1983, the incredible relationship between Loubet and the legendary beast of the wilderness began on the eve of Christmas in 1977, as Loubet was stacking firewood outside his cabin on the banks of the Peace River in northern Alberta. "The sun was just going below the horizon," the 57-year-old trapper recalled. "The sky was a beautiful yellow streaked with red and I had paused to look at it before going back in the cabin.

"Suddenly I felt as if some one was watching me. I felt eyes burning into my back." the trapper recalled.

"I turned and there he was, no more than 12 feet away — a Bigfoot. At first I thought my eyes were playing tricks on me. There could be no such creature.

"But there he was, staring at me with eyes burning like red-hot coals.

"He was huge — at least eight feet tall. His entire body was covered in long, brown hair. Only his face was bare.

"He just stood there looking at me. I thought he was about to attack me. But then I saw he was holding out something to me in one hand. He held one of my traps. And in the other hand he held the body of a dead squirrel.

"He dropped them to the snow and then just turned and walked away. The next day, I discovered that all my traps had been made harmless. There was not an animal in any of them."

The following year, the bizarre incident was repeated and another steel jawed trap and its lifeless victim were dropped at Loubet's feet on Christmas Eve. "But this time, the eyes of the beast were not blazing red with anger," Loubet said. "There was only a look of profound sorrow. That look haunted me for many months. Finally, I decided that I would make one more trip to the cabin on the next Christmas Eve. I wanted to see if the creature would return to my cabin. He did."

But on this Christmas Eve 1984, the Bigfoot left a gift — a wildly frozen deer.

"It obviously had been dead for some time," Loubet exclaimed. "There was not a mark of injury on it. The meat was good and it would last me for many weeks.

"It was then that I fully realized that the Bigfoot had not wanted me to kill any animals on Christmas Eve. I have thought many times about it and I still don't understand why or how a beast could have such feelings.

"But that is the way it has been ever since. No animals die in my traps on Christmas Eve and Bigfoot brings me his gift of thanks.

"It will be the same again this year. But it might be our final meeting. And though it may sound foolish, I just want to be there to say goodbye to an old friend. Perhaps he and I will meet again after I die — someplace up yonder."

River turtles kill 3 people!

By MARTHA ATKINS

Bloodthirsty turtles released into a river to clean up pollution are attacking swimmers — and have killed at least three people!

Stunned scientists thought the turtles would eat the flesh from the thousands of corpses dumped into India's Ganges River each year by religious pilgrims. But the scientists were dead wrong.

"In three separate incidents people have been pulled under the water and dismembered by these man-eating beasts," said Rajesh Mishra, an official in the department of public instruction in Uttar Pradesh, India.

"Their bodies were picked clean in just a matter of minutes."

"And these are only the reported deaths. Who knows how many other unfortunates have been eaten that we don't know about."

The creatures are a particularly lethal variety of soft-shelled river turtle that was specially bred to eat the flesh from rotting corpses and make the water cleaner. The Ganges is India's most sacred river. Every year thousands of pilgrims journey to the Ganges to bathe in its waters and scatter the ashes of their dead relatives in the river. They believe that by doing so their sins will be purified.

And hundreds of religious group pilgrimages to the Ganges daily. Many pilgrims visit the water daily in order to be cleansed of all sins.

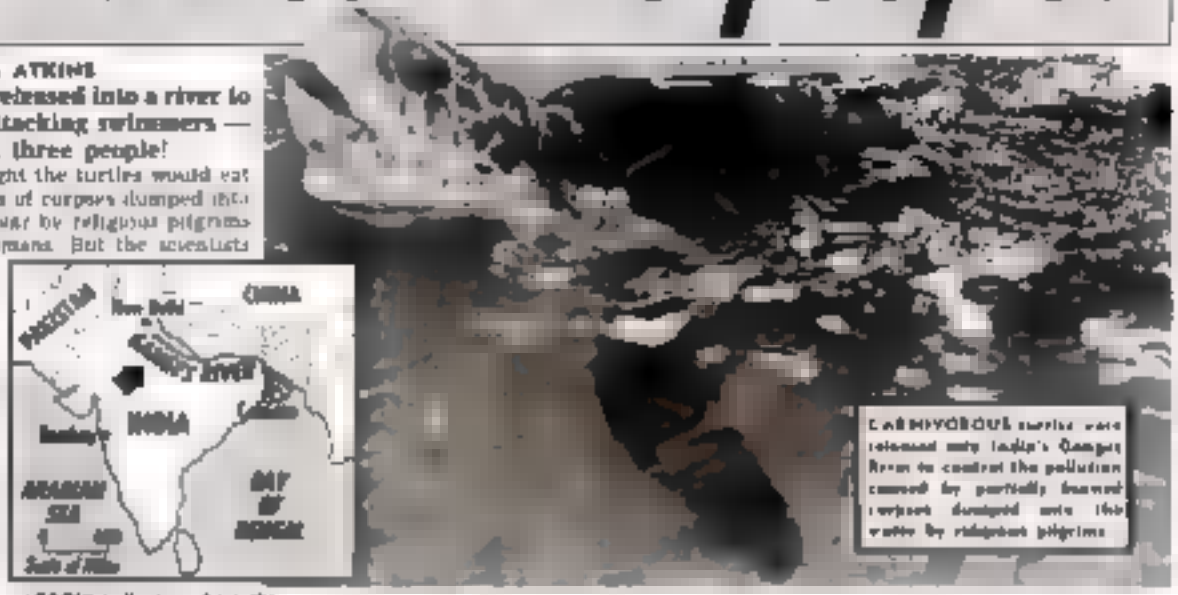
We spoke to the Water Ministry and Ashwin J. suddenly disappeared beneath the surface.

"I lunged toward where he'd been standing only a moment before. I felt a slight struggle underneath me, but then it was gone. I was facing both but I glanced to the right and he was gone."

Suddenly I looked him and pulled him to safety before he was eaten alive. As it was, he left first was enough for India, it had to be amputated.

Officials are baffled about what to do. There is talk of the danger but it doesn't do any good.

"They're still going to bathe there no matter what the danger because it is a religious experience for them," said Mishra.



ARROW indicates where the turtles released their sickness.

CARNIVOROUS turtles were released into India's Ganges River to control the pollution caused by partially burned corpses dumped into the water by religious pilgrims.

35,000 letters of love

Dear old dad sends a note a day to each of his 6 kids — since 1973

By MARTHA ATKINS

Clifton "Slim" Surfus writes to each of his six kids every day — and he hasn't missed a day in 16 years!

That's over 35,000 letters just to his children alone! He's also written tons of thousands more to his grandchildren and close friends

"I started writing to the kids when they went away to college. And then they got married and moved away, so I just kept on writing," says Slim, who lives in Chicago, Ill.

"I write personalized notes to each one every day."

Slim and his wife, Frances, who passed away last December, were married for 50 wonderful years. Three of their children — Sharon, 50, Judy, 48, and Dawn, 33 — live close to him in Illinois. Two of his daughters — Wanda, 40, and Holly, 36, live in Pennsylvania, and his son Gerald, 38, lives in Sarasota, Fla.

He's also got 14 grandchildren that he writes to, but not every day.

The retired mailcarrier sets aside a certain time each day to sit down and write his letters.

But he doesn't use regular stationery.

"We've all given him boxes of stationery to use, but he doesn't use it," says his oldest daughter, Sharon Carlson.

"He writes on the back of receipts and articles he's clipped. I've even gotten notes on the backs of cash register receipts and programs from plays that he's seen."

He tells his kids what's been happening to him and any thoughts that he's had during the day.

"And if a pen runs out of ink while he's writing, he sends you the pen with the letter," says his youngest daughter Dawn Nielsen.

The letter writing dad does not mail his letters in regular envelopes, either. He makes his own out of paper and seals them with whatever tape is around.

The kids say they really look forward to getting their daily letters.

"I will hang up if I don't get one and ask him what happened," said Dawn. "He says he'll get two tomorrow. Then if I've just gotten a fluff it we don't get one every day."

Bill hasn't skipped a beat in 16 years! Dear dad "Slim" Surfus writes to each of his children every day!

Thieves take wooden rabbit on long hop — & then bring it back!

Traveling thieves swiped Harry West's wooden Easter bunny — and eight months later returned the rabbit with 41 snapshots from a globe-trotting trip!

The Sacramento, Calif., man found the missing hare propped on his car windshield next to a bag of photos.

"There are all kinds of pictures," said West's wife, Louise. "The rabbit really got around in those eight months and even had been given a name by the kidnappers — Elmer Bunny Schmidt."

Photos of the rambling rabbit were taken as far west as Nevada and in such out-of-the-way places as Bermuda and St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands.

The long-eared hare even had his picture taken with the Mayor of Baltimore, Kurt Schmoke.

"How in the world the person got the mayor to pose with the rabbit, I can't imagine," West said.

GIANT HOROSCOPE

By Countess Sophia Sabak

ARIES

Mar. 21-Apr. 19

Patience will be needed when dealing with someone who is consistently late.

Control your impulse to speak out, so the person is aware of the situation, and will soon correct it.

You are on anything but a winning streak this week, and could lose your shirt on an investment you are planning — so go slowly and very carefully.

A phone call brightens the weekend telling you that someone you like cares for you a lot.

TAURUS

Apr. 20-May 20

Romance is in the picture, and a happy decision concerning a long-time relationship may result.

The balance due on your credit card monthly statement is a shocker when you discover that your mate has made several secret and costly purchases.

An aging relative's routine physical exam turns up no new problems, and you will be relieved of a worry when all tests are negative.

A check is in the mail from an unexpected source.

GEMINI

May 21-June 20

Mixed planetary influences could play havoc with relationships this week.

Avoid in-laws like the plague, as a family row is high on the list of gamble trouble spots.

You can expect a surprise package from out of state, and at least two letters containing happy news in the mail this week.

Door-to-door salesmen and solicitors for charitable funds could interfere with an otherwise relaxing weekend.

CANCER

June 21-July 22

You will finally realize there is no easy or instant way to beat that across proceedings you've accumulated. So decide on a sensible plan to cut loss and exercise more.

A phone call from your relative's creditors puts you between a rock and a hard place.

Lighten up. It's not your problem. You should tell them to leave you out of it.

A promotion could come to those who work, and a raise will come with it.

LEO

July 23-Aug. 22

Satisfaction will be yours this week when an offspring brings home a great report card, and also accomplishments in the sports field that will fill you with pride.

Stress will take its toll by week's end, and plans may have to be changed when a minor health problem surfaces.

You have been selling yourself short.

Focus on your talents and abilities this week. They can be valuable assets in helping you to attain your goals.

VIRGO

Aug. 23-Sept. 22

A busy period on the home front can be expected with an unexpected visit by kin.

Frustrations rise when your usually sunny and lighthearted mate has a sudden mood swing, and is depressed and uncooperative about weekend plans.

Help relieve the tension by having intimate dinners for two or taking long walks together with that special person.

A little understanding will go a long way.

LIBRA

Sept. 23-Oct. 22

The loss of a personal item may be in store for travelers this week. Check and double-check your suitcase for valuables before you start home. And to be on the safe side, carry traveler's checks instead of cash.

An embarrassing situation develops with a not-too-friendly acquaintance, and you are pleasantly surprised when they react with laughter, putting you at ease.

Postponed car repairs may catch up with you this weekend.

SCORPIO

Oct. 23-Nov. 21

The green-eyed monster surfaces this week when someone receives something you've been angling for.

Make a cool effort to be clearer in your communications, as behind-the-scenes forces are watching and working on your behalf. Your time is coming!

Tackling a construction project on the home front could result in minor injuries — so do be careful this week.

Expect a surprise visit from an old friend.

SAGITTARIUS

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Although money interests are dominant all week, Monday and Tuesday are the best days for taking positive action.

Wearing the color red will prove extremely lucky for those seeking love and romance at this time.

An unexpected bill shatters the budget and you may have to scrap plans for that short vacation, but the short-of-cash situation won't last long.

Your partner takes the romantic lead over the weekend.

CAPRICORN

Dec. 23-Jan. 19

Both you and your mate will be in an upbeat mood this week.

You should make the most of it by getting out and about and having fun.

If a short trip by car is part of your plans, pay close attention to details. Use part bolts and avoid heavily traveled highways.

A phone call will renew an old friendship and bring you welcome news about distant relatives.

A family worry will also be resolved happily this week.

If your birthday is this week . . .

Planetary positions for the coming year are only partly favorable for health. To build up your resistance, start a regular exercise program and supplement it with proper eating and vitamins.

The stresses will prove lucky for you. You'll find an object that brings you a reward or an opportunity for advancement.

A meeting with a person of the other sex sparks an idea that could change your life. Romance will favor you in ways you can't even imagine.

Driving becomes especially hazardous for you. Take extra care on highways.

AQUARIUS

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Your mood is optimistic this week and you put your energy in the direction of cleaning and minor chores and the attic.

A meeting with another shopper in the local supermarket or convenience store sparks a conversation that may have surprising and romantic results.

This is a good time for gamblers, and bingo players will finally hit the jackpot. Wear green for luck!

It's a good time for earning extra money.

PISCES

Feb. 19-Mar. 20

A flash of insight this week helps you solve a nagging problem, so use your intuition and proceed confidently. You're finally on the right track.

An unexpected boost to your finances brightens your week.

MIRACLE OF

On-the-job stress turns young gals into zombies

By KEITH SELLARS

Depression and anxiety are widespread in more than 70 percent of American companies — especially among women workers.

Stress affects about 25 percent of all employees, according to a Gallup poll of top officials and medical directors of 200 companies.

Women workers between 22 and 44 are most susceptible to mental health ills.

About 12 percent of women in that category suffer from sleeplessness, loss of concentration, lethargy and other serious disorders.

Campus funsters' nudie workout

Campus police surprised dozens of young men exercising in the early morning hours outside a sorority house — wearing T-shirts — and nothing else!

Temperatures were near freezing when the prankisters were discovered at North Dakota State University, Fargo police were alerted but by the time they reached the scene, everyone had fled the area.

No charges are expected to be filed.

SEVEN YEARS AGO Michele had to wear a mask. "The amount of pain she put herself through was awful," said her doctor.

By SUSAN JIMISON

Michele Pigeon was known as "The Girl in the Iron Mask" because a bizarre mental disorder forced her to live strapped into a helmet — as protection against herself!

Today, the Bradenton, Fla., girl is a perfectly normal young woman, thanks to a dedicated doctor who cured her of her horrible disease. But she still bears the scars she got from smashing into walls, hitting herself in the face and trying to gouge out her eyes.

"Now she's charming, she's perfect," said the miracle worker, behavior modification expert Dr. Neil Sleeng, who has worked with Michele for six long years. "She works hard, dresses beautifully and she's responsible and considerate.

"If I had a daughter, I'd want her to be like Michele is now. But in the 15 years I've worked with mental patients she's the most astounding case I've ever seen."

Michele first appeared in the pages of The NKWs back in November, 1982, after her behavior got so wild she had to be institutionalized. She was 15 years old then and her case was considered hopeless. A number of experts had given up on her.

Dr. Sleeng began working with her in 1983 and realized within weeks that Michele had the worst case of autism he had ever seen. Michele had to be tied down because four or five people could barely keep her from lashing out at herself — or anyone who got in her way.

Within weeks, Dr. Sleeng stopped tying her and simply wrestled her to a standstill when she tried to attack. Two years later, she was well enough to be without her helmet.

"It took enormous persistence and energy," the Miami psychologist recalled. "The staff had to wrestle her from moment to moment. The amount of pain Michele put herself through was awful. She would hit herself thousands of times a day if you let her. She mutilated her face and destroyed the vision in one eye.

"Slowly and surely by talking to her, we shaped her thinking into normal lines and she learned she had to cooperate.

"In the early years, she dislocated my shoulder. She scratched, bit, kicked. Michele kicked me in the face. I looked like I was in a street fight. Today, if you see her and talk to her, you'd wonder why she's still in treatment."

Michele lives at South Florida Hospital near Ft. Lauderdale now and is continuing her treatment with Dr. Sleeng. Her parents hope to move her closer to

One Million Dollars in 9 Months Guaranteed!

Dear Friend,

I make one million dollars or 9 months free. That may do it for me!

My name is John Wright. And not too long ago I was flat broke. I was $31,000 in debt. My bank repossessed my car because I couldn't keep up with the payments. And one day the landlord gave me an eviction notice because I hadn't paid the rent for three months. So we had to move out. My family and I lived at my cousin's place for the first of that awful period. I could manage to get quite depressed. That was very embarrassing.

Things have changed since. I own two homes in Southern California. The one I'm living in now is directly ocean front. It's worth more than one million dollars. I own several cars, among them a brand new Mercedes and a brand new Cadillac. Right now, I have a million dollars free and clear with the bank, and have an additional deposit of $200,000 each week back in Illinois bank.

Best of all, I have time on hand to enjoy it. I work about 4 hours a day. The rest of the day, I do strange things like ... anything. Other days, I play racquetball or tennis. Sometimes, frankly, I just lie out under the sun with a good book. I love to take long vacations. I just got back from a two week vacation from ... Maui, Hawaii.

I'm not really trying to impress you with the wealth. And I'm not trying to tell you a story to make you think it's today's version of that money myth. I was broke enough to lose the car. I will never have been able to pay back bankrupt. It was only through the amazing money secret that I could pull myself out of my sad, broke reality. What secret, you would have happened to my family and me.

Knowing about the same financial secret that has changed my life completely. It changes my wealth, happiness, and more importantly of all — peace of mind. The secret will change your life, too! It will give you everything you want and will solve all your money problems. Of course, you don't have to take my word for it. You can try it for yourself. In no way can you lose. It's risking no money at all. It's giving the address of the factory of the product I'm about to tell you about. And you will prove to you yourself the amazing money secret will work for you, too!

Why, you may ask, am I willing to share the secret with you? To make money? Initially. But, although here all the money and possessions I'll ever need. Secondly, my story does not involve any sort of complicated schemes. Don't bother trying to make anything to me than buying my secret only with those who replace a million opportunities and get rich quickly.

The secret is extremely simple. Anyone can use it. You can be started with absolutely no money at all and the rich is almost sure. You don't need special training or even a high school education.
